When entering the game, the user is given an intro screen that explains the game and gives an example story created from a prompt.

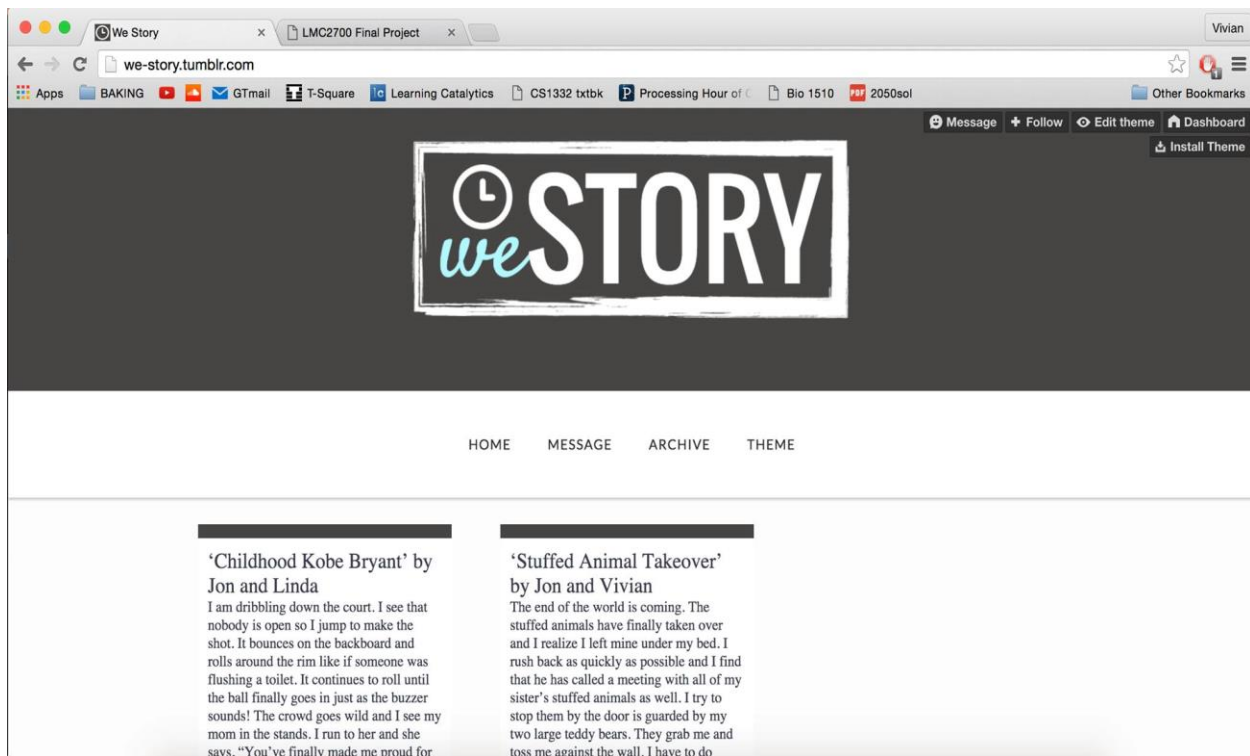

When a user connects to the server, text will be printed to the screen showing that they have joined the game. Clicking start will give each user the same prompt and start the timer.

Each input is given a different background and the story will be outputted to the screen in paragraph form.

After time is up, the user can click the button next to the timer to post their story to weStory tumblr page with a title and the names of the users that created it.

All stories that are submitted to the tumblr page will appear at the URL "we-story.tumblr.com".
